PREFACE.

The Library of Lincoln's Inn, though naturally exhibiting its main strength in the several branches of jurisprudence, is well furnished with books in other departments of literature, particularly in that of English history—a class indispensable to the student who wishes to become acquainted with the principles on which the laws of his country have been framed. On the advantage of literature to the legal profession, Sir Samuel Romilly has thus expressed his feelings: "As soon as I found I was to be a busy lawyer for life, I strenuously resolved to keep up my habit of non-professional reading; for I had witnessed so much misery in the last years of many great lawyers whom I had known, from their loss of all taste for books, that I regarded their fate as my warning."*

The foundation of the Library, as has been stated on a former occasion† by the compiler of this Catalogue, is of earlier date than that of any library now existing in London. In the 13th Henry VII. A.D. 1497, John Nethersale, a member of the Society of Lincoln's Inn, bequeathed a sum of money towards the building of a Library, which was completed in 1508. The site of this building cannot at the present day be traced. Previously to the erection of the New Hall and Library in 1845, the books occupied a suite of rooms in the Stone Building, to which they had been transferred from the Old Square in 1787.

From various entries in the records of the Society it appears that no great progress was made in the accumulation of books for more than a century after the completion of the original building —a circumstance not much to be wondered at, when it is remembered that the law library of William Rastall, one of the Judges of the Queen's Bench in the reign of Elizabeth, comprised only twenty-four volumes, and that it was observed by Dr.

Gwyn to Judge Finch (as related by Howell in his Familiar Letters) at a somewhat later period, that "the authors of the common law may be all carried in a wheelbarrow."

The Library has been enriched at various times by donations from members of the Society, and also from other individuals and societies. One of the earliest benefactors was Ranulph Cholmeley, Serjeant at Law and Recorder of the City of London, and Reader at Lincoln's Inn in the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth.* John Brisco, Miles Corbet, George Anton, Charles Fairfax and Sir Roger Owen were donors of manuscripts in the seventeenth century; and books were likewise presented by Dr. Donne and Archbishop Usher, both of whom had held the office of Preacher to the Society. To the celebrated William Prynne, who was also a Bencher of this Society, the Library is indebted for the gift of several books, besides copies of many of his own multifarious writings. Among these were the three "tomes" of his far-famed "Records," the INTRODUCTION to which, purchased at the sale of the Stowe Library in 1849 for the sum of £335 —forming a separate unfinished volume and believed to be the only copy extant,—has found an appropriate resting-place by the side of the volumes presented by the author himself to "his ever-honoured kind friends," the Benchers of Lincoln's Inn. A collection of Pamphlets, chiefly theological and political—some of them very curious, forming thirty-nine volumes in 4to. and folio,—was given to the Library in 1706 by John Brydall, a member of the Society, and author of many legal works.

But the names which claim the most conspicuous notice among the benefactors are those of Sir Matthew Hale; John Coxe, Esq., Treasurer of Lincoln's Inn in the year 1775; and Charles Purton Cooper, Esq., one of the present Benchers, and well known by his services in the cause of historical literature while acting as Secretary to the Record Commission. A few words subjoined respecting each of these donations may give some intimation of their value and importance to the Library.

1. By the bequest of Sir Matthew Hale, in the year 1676, the Society acquired the large collection of Manuscripts made by that eminent judge. This collection, besides a great number of valuable legal and historical documents, including various transcripts of

* Several rare volumes of the early Year-Books, a beautiful copy of the first edition of Fitzherbert's Abridgment, and a MS. of Bracton, of the fourteenth century, on vellum, were among the books presented by Ranulph Cholmeley.

Public Records, contains some writings of Archbishop Usher, and many papers in the handwriting of Selden, the legal MSS. of that great scholar not having been sent to the Bodleian Library with the rest of his books. There is only one volume of Sir Matthew Hale's own writings;—this is a large folio, closely written by his own hand, in the manner of a law common-place book, and is called by him, "The Black Book of the New Law." Several other MSS. in his handwriting were purchased by the Society a few years ago.

2. The Library of Mr. Coxe, comprising many manuscripts in his own handwriting, together with about 5000 volumes of printed books in legal, historical, and various other branches of literature, became the property of the Society in 1785 by his bequest.

3. By the munificent donation of Mr. Purton Cooper, in 1843, the Society obtained a large collection of books on the civil law and on the laws of foreign nations, consisting of nearly 2000 volumes in various languages;—many of them of great rarity, and in very fine condition. Mr. Cooper had previously given a valuable collection of American Law Reports, consisting of about 150 volumes.

Greatly, however, as the Library has been enriched by these liberal gifts,* its chief augmentation is due to the purchases made during the present century, more especially in the few years previous to the removal of the books to the new building in 1845, and since its re-arrangement therein. The number of volumes is now upwards of 30,000. In the year 1808, the collection of legal MSS. of Mr. Serjeant Hill, together with many printed books containing numerous manuscript notes, was purchased of his executors; and in 1818 those of John Maynard, King's Serjeant in the reign of Charles II., and one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal in the reign of William and Mary, which had passed through various hands, were bought by the Society. The Melmoth MSS. were obtained by bequest in 1799.†

In connection with the Library of Lincoln's Inn, the name of the late William Selwyn, Esq., the learned author of the "Law of Nisi Prius," which has passed through eleven editions, must ever

* There are many other names of note among the donors of books which would require too large a space for insertion here. The principal of these are enumerated in the account of the Library before mentioned.

† It may be proper to mention here that elaborate digested Indexes of the Melmoth and Coxe MSS., prepared by Andrew Doria, Esq., Barrister of Lincoln's Inn, are in the Library.

hold a distinguished place. To him the Society is indebted, not only for several donations of books, but for much time and attention devoted to the improvement of the Library for many years previous to the formation of the Committee in 1843. The Mastership of Sir Edward Sugden (now Lord St. Leonards) in 1837 was also distinguished by many useful additions, particularly of Scotch Law, to the Library. After the formation of the Library Committee, the augmentation of the books proceeded with much rapidity, and has continued with more or less activity to the present time.* At the same time that much care has been bestowed upon the departments of English and Foreign Law, the addition of such works as the Edda of Sæmund, printed at Copenhagen, the notes of which contain a rich mine of historical and philological lore,—the Ecclesiastical Laws of Hungary, published by the Count de Batthyan, Bishop of Transylvania,—and the great work of Pertz, the "Monumenta Germaniæ Historica," is indicative of attention paid to the "incunabula" of European history.

A Catalogue of the Printed Books in the Library was printed in the year 1835; and in 1837 a Catalogue of the Manuscripts, prepared by the Rev. Joseph Hunter under the direction of the Commissioners on the Public Records, was printed in the Appendix to their General Report, and in the following year in a separate form by the Society.† In 1845 a MS. Catalogue of the printed books was made by the present librarian, and has been used in the Library up to this time; but this being manifestly insufficient for the requirements of the Society, a new Catalogue, entirely remodelled, has now been prepared and printed under the authority of the Masters of the Bench.

The present Catalogue comprehends all the printed works in the Library, with the exception generally of the Pamphlets (amounting to several thousands), which it has been thought advisable to include in a separate volume; this is now in preparation, and will probably be completed in the course of the year. Some of the pamphlets, for the sake of convenience, are introduced into the present volume, as in the case of Prynne's works, and in a few other instances. Those also which relate to separate Reports of Trials are entered together with the trials with which they are connected. The collection of Reports of Trials in the Library is so extensive that it has been thought proper to enter them all together (with a few exceptions indicated at the end of the list) under the head of TRIALS, instead of distributing them through the Catalogue under the several names. Of the Parliamentary Sessional Papers, forming now upwards of 2000 volumes, a few which are kept in the Library separate from the others, as being more frequently consulted by the profession—such as the Reports of the Charity Commissioners, the Reports on Real Property, Common Law, &c.,—are introduced under their respective heads. All the other Papers may be readily found by the General Indexes published by the Houses of Parliament.

* Among the early labourers in this field, it may suffice to mention the names of Clement Tudway Swanston, Esq., Matthew Davenport Hill, Esq., Charles Purton Cooper, Esq., the late Sutton Sharpe, Esq., and the late William Fuller Boteler, Esq.

† Many important additions have been made to the Manuscripts since Mr. Hunter's Catalogue was printed; among these is a volume of the Year Books, containing Reports of Cases in all the years of Edward I., of which no other copy is known to be extant.

The alphabetical mode of arrangement has been adopted as the most convenient for general reference; indeed, although some advantages are presented by a classified arrangement, this is at the same time attended with so many difficulties and perplexities as to have given rise to the assertion, that "a good and useful classed catalogue of a great library is a proved impossibility."* The absence of classification, it is hoped, may here in some degree be compensated by the Index of Subjects appended to the volume. The works are entered, as far as possible, under the names of the authors; and, where these do not appear on the title-page, but can be otherwise ascertained, the names are usually included in brackets [ ]. Collections of laws or of historians are entered under the names of the editors where they are known;—if not known, either under the country or the subject to which they relate.

With regard to anonymous works, the position of which, when the names of the authors cannot be ascertained, is one of the principal difficulties in the compilation of an alphabetical catalogue, it has sometimes been said that these might be arranged on the convenient principle adopted by Barbier,† of placing them under the first word that occurs on the title-page. But this principle, though certainly convenient when the reader who is searching for a book is perfectly acquainted with the words of the title, is of little avail when he knows only the subject of the work. Thus the book may be entitled an "Account," "Relation," "Narrative," "Essay," or "Dissertation," with the epithets of "true," "faithful," "historical," and so forth prefixed. Now under which of these words is the search to be made by the inquirer, who does not remember the precise terms of the title? In this Catalogue an attempt is made to meet the difficulty by placing the book under such heading indicative of the subject as is supposed most likely to occur to the reader, and sometimes with the addition of cross references. It is admitted, however, that the desired object may not always in this way be attained; but to frame a catalogue which shall in no instance disappoint the inquirer is a task apparently beyond the skill of the most experienced bibliographer. Yet no labour has been spared in the introduction of all such appliances as may facilitate the researches of the student; and for those errors and deficiencies which notwithstanding all care may still remain, and are in fact almost inseparable from a work of this nature, the compiler trusts to the indulgence of the reader, concluding with the words of Anthony à Wood:—"A painfull work it is, I'll assure you, and more than difficult; wherein what toyle hath been taken, as no man thinketh, so no man believeth, but he that hath made the triall."

CUNNINGHAM (Alexander). The History of Great Britain: from the Revolution in 1688, to the accession of George the First. Translated from the Latin manuscript, with an introduction, containing an account of the author and his writings, by William Thomson, LL.D. Published by Thomas Hollingbery, D.D. 2 vols. 4to. Lond. 1787

A manuscript note on the fly-leaf of this book mentions some remarkable coincidences relating to the two Cunninghams noticed by Dr. Monk, in his Life of Bentley. "Between Alexander Cunningham the historian, and Alexander Cunningham the editor of Horace, there are so many particulars of resemblance, that Thomson, the translator of the History, was forced, after a minute inquiry, to remain in suspense whether or not they were the same individual. It appears that they were both Scotchmen, had both been travelling tutors, both resided at the Hague at the same period, both were intimate with certain distinguished public characters, both were eminent chess-players, both accomplished scholars, and both lived to an advanced age. . . . . The critic died at the Hague in 1730, and the historian died in London in 1737."—MONK's Life of Bentley, vol. 2, p. 161.

FITZHERBERT (Sir Anthony). La Graunde Abridgement.
3 vols. fol. s. l. 1516

To this work there is neither title, nor name of printer, and it has been supposed from the evidence of the wood-cuts that it was either executed by Wynkyn de Worde, or printed for him in France; but it is worthy of notice that many of the characters closely resemble those used by John Rastell in the Tables to this Abridgment printed by him in the following year, 1517.

At the end of the third volume is the following colophon:—

Finis tocius istius opis finiť. xxi die Dicembr̃
A° dñi millecimo quigẽtesimo sextodecimo.

Of the third volume, some copies exist with a title-page corresponding with the preceding volumes, with the date 1668, but the generality of copies are entitled: The History of King John, King Henry III., and the most illustrious King, Edward I. &c. The death of the author having occurred shortly after the publication of this volume, it is supposed that the substitution of the title was made by his executors, or persons concerned therein.

———— [The fourth volume, containing the Introduction.]

This volume, unknown to bibliographers until a recent period, was acquired by the Hon. Society of Lincoln's Inn at the sale of the Stowe Library in 1849.

"The first volume of the work commences with Book the Second. The recently acquired volume is called Book the First, and consists of the Introduction described by Prynne in the first volume, 'as not yet completed, swelling to an entire tome,' and designed, as stated by the author in the Epistle to the Readers prefixed to the second volume, to embrace the period extending 'from Adam till Christ's ascension into Heaven: and from thence in relation to the Roman, Greek and German Emperors, and other Christian Kings, in foreign parts, till our modern age.' The volume terminates unfinished, at page 400, with the words: coepiscopi tui et coma— It is without title-page, but has the same head-line over the pages as the other volumes, viz. An Exact History of Pope's intollerable Usurpations upon the Liberties of the Kings and Subjects of England and Ireland.

"It is supposed that not more than twenty-five sets of the three volumes exist, most of the copies of the first volume, and a great number of the second, together with the Introduction, having perished at the house of the printer in the Great Fire of London. It is probable that the copy of the introductory volume now in the possession of the Society of Lincoln's Inn had been reserved in the author's hands for his own use during the progress of the work through the press; and that, if any other copies were rescued from the flames, not having been issued to the public, they have since perished, from the circumstance of their being unfinished and without title-page, and having consequently been disregarded by persons into whose hands they may have fallen."—Spilsbury's Lincoln's Inn, pp. 283–7.

A complete list of Prynne's works may be found in the Appendix to the Catalogue of Mr. Purton Cooper's Library. See page 203 of this Catalogue.

Modern Acts of Parliament are divided into the classes of Public General, Local and Personal, Private Acts printed by the King's Printer, and Private Acts not so printed; but as some variations have from time to time taken place in the mode of division, the following statement of particulars, derived from the Sessional Tables prefixed to the volumes of Statutes printed by authority, may be useful:—

1. From the reign of Rich. III. to 25 Geo. II. the division is simply into Public and Private Acts.
2. From 26 Geo. II. to 37 Geo. III., after the list of Public Acts, is a list of Acts termed Public Acts not printed in this collection; and then follows the list of Private Acts.
3. From 38 Geo. III. to 42 Geo. III., the division is into three classes, termed, Public General Acts; Public Local and Personal Acts; and Private Acts.
4. From 43 Geo. III. to 54 Geo. III. the classes are termed Public General Acts; Local and Personal Acts to be judicially noticed; and Local and Personal Acts not printed.
5. From 55 Geo. III. to the present time the division is fourfold, under the following terms:—Public General Acts; Local and Personal Acts declared Public, &c.; Private Acts printed by the King's Printer; and Private Acts not printed.
